The goal of this course is to examine several interesting topics such as trade pattern, factor movements, trade policy and its impact on national welfare. The first module of the course will lay out several useful theories regarding the trade pattern, and the second module will help you assemble these theories into an overall analytical framework. The third module will challenge you to apply this analytical framework to real-world applications. By the end of the course, I hope that you will have developed a keen interest in issues related to international trade, as well as a set of analytical tools that can be applied on other fields. You should be able to analyze, in an unbiased way, a wide array of important international policy issues. 教授语言 Teaching Languages 普通话和英语 Chinese and English 先修要求 Course Prerequisites 中级微观经济学 Prerequisite for this course is intermediate microeconomics (ECON1002) or equivalent.
