: www.examda.com The American economic system is organized around a basically private-enterprise , market-oriented economy in which consumers largely determine what shall be produced by spending their money in the marketplace for those goods and services that they want most. Private businessmen , striving to make profits , produce these goods and services in competition with other businessmen ; and the profit motive , operating under competitive pressures , largely determines how these goods and services are produced. Thus , in the American economic system it is the demand of individual consumers , coupled with the desire of businessmen to maximize profits and the desire of individuals to maximize their incomes , that together determine what shall be produced and how resources are used to produce it. An important factor in a market-oriented economy is the mechanism by which consumer demands can be expressed and responded to by producers. In the American economy , this mechanism is provided by a price system , a process in which prices rise and fall in response to relative demands of consumers and supplies offered by seller-producers. If the product is in short supply relative to the demand , the price will be bid up and some consumers will be eliminated from the market. If , on the other hand , producing more of a commodity results in reducing its cost , this will tend to increase the supply offered by seller-producers , which in turn will lower the price and permit more consumers to buy the product.

Thus , price is the regulating mechanism in the America economic system.来源 : www.examda.com

The important factor in a private-enterprise economy is that individual are allowed to own productive resources (private property) , and they are permitted to hire labor , gain control over natural resources , and produce goods and services for sale at a profit. In the American economy , the concept of private property embraces not only the ownership of productive resources but also certain rights , including the right to determine the price of a product or to make a free contract with another private individual.
