From what has been said, it must be clear that no one can make very positive statements about how language originated. There is no material in any language today and in the earliest ( 1 ) and or records of ancient languages show us language in a new and ( 2 ) show showing emerging state. It is often said, of course, that the language ( 3 ) the 删除 originated in cries of anger, fear, pain and pleasure, and the ( 4 ) and but necessary evidence is entirely lacking: there are no remote tribes, no ancient records, providing evidence of a language with a large proportion of such cries ( 5 ) large lager than we find in English. It is true that the absence of such evidence does not disprove the theory, but in ( 6 ) in on other grounds too the theory is not very attractive. People of all races and languages make rather similar noises in return to pain or pleasure. The fact that ( 7 ) return response such noises are similar on the lips of Frenchmen and Malaysians whose languages are utterly different, serves to emphasize on the fundamental difference ( 8 ) on 删除 between these noises and language proper. We may say that the cries of pain or chortles of amusement are largely reflex actions, instinctive to large extent, ( 9 ) a whereas language proper does not consist of signs but of these that have to be learnt and that are ( 10 ) these those [ 人文题 ] [ 阅读理解 ]
