你不明白，你有两个选择，第一，你可以说“ What do you mean ? ” 或者你可以继续走，向那个家伙挥挥手，滑稽的笑着说“ Good morning and have a nice day ” 诚实的说，雅思考试真的不难。考试的目的是测试你是否拥有在英语国家生存的基本语言能力。但实际中，学生们好像不得不隐藏他们的英语语言上的不足。所以，我想说，考官知道你不是native speaker,但是他们不会介意。他们想知道你是否有足够的英语能力应付你在现实中可能遇到的情况。并且同样重要的是，在这种情况下，你知道该怎样做。这对于获得一个好的分数是非常必要的。最后，我祝愿所有要参加雅思考试的考生好运！！

My purpose in writing this article is twofold. Firstly, I want to dispel certain misconceptions with regard to the IELTS examination. Secondly, as both a native speaker of English and an IELTS lecturer, it is my hope to be able to aid students in attaining good scores that truly reflect their English abilities. I will focus on the Speaking section because the greatest amount of bewilderment seems to lie here. It is commonly thought that the test is one of English speaking. This is not true. If you say "Hello" in the exam, it will be sufficient to give you a band score. Rather, you are being tested for English usage. What this means is that in order to obtain a high score, communication is the key. It is not helpful to memorize and regurgitate lengthy speeches. Nor is it any good to make use of esoteric nomenclature in the hopes of putting the examiner in awe. A simple anecdote that I always tell my students to illustrate my point is as follows. Imagine yourself in England. You are walking down the street into a building, minding your own business, when out of nowhere, someone screams, "Don't go in there, there's a bomb!". Well, if you do not understand, you have two options open to you. First, you could reply, "What do you mean?" Or you could continue walking, raise a hand to wave at the person while wearing a comical smile and saying, "Good morning and have a nice day." Honestly speaking, the IELTS is really that simple. The purpose of the exam is to see if you have the basic language skills needed to survive in an English speaking country. Students seem to think that they have to disguise their deficiencies in English. So let me make this pronouncement. We know that you are not native speakers. We know that you don't always understand every word in the English lexicon. But we don't care. We want to know if you speak enough English to cope with the situations you will face. And equally important, that you demonstrate you know what to do in situations where you do not. This first realization is necessary towards attaining a good score. With that, I wish all students who wish to take the IELTS exam the very best of luck. 100Test 下载频道开通，各类考试题目直接下载。详细请访问 www.100test.com
