Beijingwhole memo of 19/9/2004 oral english. make sure you come to test room at least one hour because maybe there are some candidates who give up the oral test due to unsatisfying with the test in paper. part 1 said hello to you and see your ID. whats your full name? where do you come from? describe your subject. do you like it? why? clothes you wear in your school? (i said pardon twice, for the prounciation of school is strange by examiner) wedding different in china and foreign countries. wedding difrerent in the past and nowadays. part 2 this part i haven,t prepared before, so i said something at random, and made some mistakes in grammer? the most important desicion you made when did you make what is it how you made it part 3 it is really a lot of questions. parents paly an important role in making decision of children? whether it is good or bad for children? is their experience good for childrens making decison? what is the old man react to the childrens behavior? different in making decision by children in china and foreign countries? .....in past and nowadays? what do you think about changes in making decision in the future? take it easy. just take it as a chance to communicate whit a friend, dont pay much attention to your grammer or content, just lmake the examiner know you have ability and willingness to talk.
