B: no, not very much. He ' s too ambitious and dishonest. A: I agree. I like his brother, Paul. They are not alike. B: yes. They are completely different. Paul is very sociable and much more honest than his brother. A: what kind of person do you consider yourself to be? B: I think I ' m polite, careful, relaxed and shy. A: oh, I don ' t think you ' re shy! You are always chatting with new people when we go to a party. B: well, yes, but those people always start talking to me. I never talk to them first. Perhaps I ' m not as shy as I think. Anyway, you ' re certainly not shy! A: You ' re right. I love going out and making new friends. B: so, you ' ll be at my birthday party on Friday? A: Of course! Intermediate A: How do you think people get their personalities? B: I think it ' s mainly from the environment a person lives it. A: Don ' t you think people get their personalities from their parents? B: no, but parents control a lot of the environment that kids grow up in, so they certainly influence their kid ' s personalities a lot. A: So why do you think many kids have personalities that are so different to their parents. B: maybe when they become teenagers, they want to be completely different to their parents. A: You might be right. I guess most parents want their kids to be like them, but kids today grow up in a different environment. You know, they know much more about the world from the internet, newspapers, and tv. B: do you think that teenagers get a lot of their bad behaviour from tv and movies? A: Maybe some of it. I think a lot of people blame TV and movies when the real problem is that the parents aren't bringing their child up correctly.

B: Parents have a difficult job. They have to bring up their children and usually have to work too. A: Yes, that's fine. Your son is doing well at school, isn't he? B: yes, he is. He's very hardworking when he's at school. Then he comes home from school and does homework before dinner. After dinner, he goes out with his friends.

A: So, he's not a bookworm? It's good that he has an outgoing personality. Some kids are very quiet and introverted. You wonder they'll survive in the real world without their parents to support them.
