Napoleons wife had new clothes every month, instead of a bath. ("Its quicker," she always said.) Rich people did not often have a bath. They washed their hands and faces, but not their bodies. Many poor people did not wash at all. A young man once said to a doctor, "Soap and water have never touched my body." (And the doctor answered, "Thats true. I know...") Why didnt people wash in those days long ago? Well, they did not have water in their houses. They carried water from rivers or from holes in the ground (=wells). Towns, people bought it from a water-carrier (送水人). Sometimes it was expensive. and soap was always expensive. They drank water, of course. and so they were clean inside. They did not think about the outside! And this is true: they just did not like a bath. Modern life is different. We use a lot of soap and water. And we are all quite clean. However a few people use too much soap. and they often get ill. Who are these people? Many young women work as hairdressers (理发师). They wash and then "dress" other womens hair. That is their job, and they like it. Young hairdressers sometimes wash thirty heads on a busy day! Their hands are soapy for seven or eight hours. and that is not a good thing. A young hairdressers hands are often red and ugly. and she must then go to a doctor. 60. Which of the following gives a general idea of the passage? Too much soap isnt
