Even in earliest times there were several different ways this could be done. Really rapid communication was not possible until electricity was put to work. In 1844 the first electric telegraph was constructed. Thirty years later the telephone was invented. Soon a whole succession of inventions was produced: the wireless telegraph and the radio, the motion picture, and television. Earth satellites today bring valuable information almost instantaneously to our homes by means of electrical signals. 100Test 下载频道开通，各类考试题目直接下载。详细请访问 www.100test.com
