中，还有一类比重不大但对考生的知识面和能力有相当要求的空格，这类试题单凭对上下文的理解还不行，还需结合考生的生活常识进行必要的联想和推理，才能确定答案。如下面短文中的题1、9、10、15和18等：

All of us communicate with one another nonverbally, as well as with words. We gesture with eyebrows or a hand, meet someone else's eyes and look. One of the most potent elements of body language is eye behavior.

Americans are concerned about how and when they meet one another's eyes. In our normal conversation, each eye contact lasts only about a second, and before one or two individuals look away. When two Americans look searchingly at each other's eyes, emotions are aroused and the relationship becomes more intimate. However, we carefully avoid this in appropriate circumstances. Proper street behavior in the United States is a nice balance of attention and inattention. You are to look at a passerby just enough to show that you are aware of his presence. If you look too little, you are shy or secretive; too much, you are inquisitive. Usually what happens is that people look at each other for about eight feet apart, and then they cast down their eyes. In parts of the Far East it is customary to look at the other person at all during conversation. In England the listener stares at the speaker attentively and blinks his eyes occasionally as a sign of interest. That eye-blink says to Americans, who expect the listener to nod or to murmur something such as "mmhmm". 1. A . fluently B . fast C . straight D . well 2. A . up B . down C . away D . round 3. A . in B . concerning C . about D . with 4.
