7. Children Must Learn How to Live. The realization of China ' s modernization relies on the children of today. Childhood is a time of physical and mental development, so efforts must be made to provide an ideal environment for their development, encouraging intellectual, physical and moral training. How should our children be trained to cope wisely in the future? We should provide them with a good material life, but more importantly, a good spiritual life. Patriotism and communism must be spread among children to stimulate lofty ideals and hard work to enliven the Chinese nation. China needs talent that has developed morally, intellectually and physically. The practice of only enabling people who receive an education to develop intellectually could result in a deficiency on the part of a generation of children. We have to put right the tendency of stressing only intelligence and ignoring moral and physical education and necessary physical work. Instead of children only receiving a classroom book -learning education we should encourage them to mingle with society and nature so that they can be more adaptable in society. 100Test 下载频道开通，各类考试题目直接下载。详细请访问 www.100test.com
