When I write memo to colleagues, its work related. When I write an email to a friend, its about personal stuff. When I write a love letter, its all sweet and passionate. When I write my diary, its to clarify my mind. I dont write books. I dont write poems. I dont write songs. 2. Do you prefer to write by hand or write using the computer? I prefer writing by hand. Its much more personal and it feels a lot nicer receiving a handwritten letter than it does getting an email. I like writing on the computer because its fun, faster than handwriting and you dont have to worry bout spelling as much! I prefer computer, because its faster and readable.把雅思加入收藏 3. Do you think computers might one day replace handwriting? Yes. Very likely! I cant remember when I last time wrote down more than a few words in handwriting. Probably back in university several years ago. I even use the computer for brainstorming. Yes. I think computers will cause the art of handwriting, letter writing, etc. to become a thing of the past. People are too lazy to pick up a pen, these days, it seems like a lot of kiddies can type faster than they can write. No. some people write fantastic emails, its not all one liners and text speak, so the skills are there, letters will stay around, they have more meaning now as they take more effort. Just as TV didnt kill radio, email wont kill letters. Problem is most letters are written on the computer and then printed out. 4. When do children begin to write in your country? They are supposed to be able to read and write their ABCs by the time they hit the kindergarten or preschool. (5 years old) All kids are different, generally in the Scotland most kids start to learn writing at the age of about 3 or 4, if they go to nursery, at school its 4 or 5. As soon as they can hold the crayon, this can be before schooling even begins! 5. Do you think handwriting is very important (nowadays)? NO. NO. NO! My handwriting is HORRIBLE, but its not about ability, its about care. Why is doctors handwriting infamously atrocious? Because they have better things to worry about. No. I do have some prejudices about people taking care of themselves but not about handwriting, this is innocent, I cant judge by the cover. No its not important. But I have had situations when I had to fill in forms such as bank applications for loans and even during an interview session. It felt weird and my hand cramps easily. Well, all in all, it depends on what you do. If your work requires using PC, handwriting should not be that important. Yes. I do believe handwriting does reflect personality to quiet an extent because a person with a good mind cannot tolerate his handwriting to be untidy for sure, he or she will somehow manage to have a good handwriting. If it is not, I wont consider them as bad person, but would not have a good impression on them at once. 6. How can children today improve their handwriting? Practice makes perfect, allow them time to write slowly and let them know how they could possibly improve and rewards for best handwriting....jus sum motivational techs should work. You write some letters and have them critique you. Have fun practicing both of yours letters together. Maybe some fun practices might get them enjoying practicing. Each person is different, its best to at least try to get them to improve, the schools dont seem to care much anymore. First, you trace a perfect model, and then you try to write it about 10 times. Thats what we did in my penmanship class. Let them be kids and have them develop their own handwriting patterns on their own. One day they can write legibly themselves. 100Test 下载频道开通，各类考试题目直接下载。详细请访问 www.100test.com
