

Chinese court moves to allow people easier access to judicial services
CET4考试 PDF转换可能丢失图片或格式，建议阅读原文

https://www.100test.com/kao\_ti2020/582/2021\_2022\_Chinese\_co\_c83\_582100.htm Chinas Supreme Peoples Court is trying to ensure legal services are within easier reach of citizens by allowing online access to judicial documents and delivering case registrations to the homes of the handicapped and seniors. According to a plan for facilitating judicial services for the people, put forward by the Supreme Peoples Court Wednesday, courts at different levels are now required to set up information centers and dispatch staff to take care of peoples complaints and case inquiries.www.100test.com Information about publicly-tried cases should be announced ahead of trials to ensure that people can sit in on the proceedings. Eligible applicants should be allowed to witness the trial by using hearing certificates or their ID cards, according to the plan. Also, deputies to the peoples congresses, the countrys legislative body, and members of political consultative conferences, the countrys advisory body, should be invited regularly to hearings. Courts should gradually establish an information inquiry service for judgement and litigation documents, or make that information public online according to law if conditions permit. A public hearing system could be introduced in execution cases, examination proceedings for case retrials and cases involving penalty reductions, parole or state compensation. The plan went on to say, local courts should offer case registration services through the phone and Internet. They were also encouraged to deliver door-to-door service for the sick, disabled and seniors. Courts and judicial personnel will be publicly reprimanded and held accountable if they attempt to persuade parties to withdraw lawsuits for the purpose of gaining higher case settlement rates and if they make unauthorized decisions to stop litigation and execution of court cases. The proposals also advise courts to provide regular or flexible mobile services for people in remote areas and dispute-intensive regions. Local courts should offer circuit and on-spot trials, as well as mediate or deal with cases there and then, according to the proposal. 更多链接：四六级机考与笔试差异评析 2009年四六级考试时间及流程详解 08年12月四六级成绩2月24日发布 100Test 下载频道开通，各类考试题目直接下载。详细请访问 www.100test.com