B Academy Kicks Off 50th Celebration The Recording Academy today said it will have a year-long celebration of its 50th Annual Grammy Awards¹, which will be shown live on TV from the Los Angeles Staples Center on Feb. 10, 2008. Recording Academy President, Neil Portnow will be joined by Quincy Jones and Joss Stone. Jones, a once Grammy winner, was one of the founding members of the Recording Academy. Stone helped show the official artwork for the 50th Grammy Awards. He has organized many activities for music fans, including the Grammy Museum, and the Grammy Brand fashion line. The Celebration starts on May 8 and will continue through 2008. Recording Academy Chairman Jimmy Jam, Los Angeles Chapter Governor Dave Koz, and other music industry VIPs will join it. Portnow said, "Over the past 50 years, the Grammy Awards has become the world's most famous music TV broadcast and the highest honor given to music makers. The Grammy Awards continues to give never-before-seen live musical performances from new and well-known artists. At the same time, it continues to try its best to find musical excellence, calling for the wellbeing of music makers and ensuring music remains a deep-rooted part of our culture." As part of its 50th Celebration
