HelloFromEarth.net will transmit users' messages to planet Gliese 581d CANBERRA, Australia - An Australian Web site is giving texting an intergalactic touch and allowing users to send short mobile phone-type messages into space. From Aug. 12 until Aug. 24, people hankering for an out-of-this-world experience can visit www.HelloFromEarth.net to post messages no longer than 160 characters that will be transmitted to Gliese 581d, the nearest Earth-like planet outside the solar system likely to support life. Expected delivery time, however, is some 20 years, the Web site said. And theres no guarantee of a response. 以下是
