Migration is usually defined as “ permanent or semipermanent change of residence ” . “ This broad definition, of course, would include a move across the street or across a city. Our concern is with movement between nations, not with internal migration within nations, although such movements often exceed international movements in volume. Today, the motives of people who move short distances are very similar to those of international migrants ” . Students of human migration speak of “ push ” and “ pull ” factors, which influence an individual ’ s decision to move from one place to another. Push factors are
