Improve Computer-research Skills Like many college students, Jose Juarez carries around a pocket-sized computer that lets him watch movies, surf the Internet and textmessage his friends. Hes part of "Generation M those born after 1985 who _____ (51) up connected to everything from video game to cellphones. "For us, it ' s everyday life," said Juarez, 18, a freshman _____ (52) California State University at Sacramento (CSUS). _____ (53), educators are now saying that not all Generation M-ers can synthesize the piles of information theyre accessing. "Theyre geeky, but they dont know what to _____ (54) with their geekdom(滑稽)," said Barbara O Connor, a Sacramento State communications studies professor who has been involved in a nationwide _____ (55) to improve students computer-research skilis. In a recent nationwide test to _____ (56) their technological "literacy" their ability to use the Internet to complete class assignments only 49 percent correctly evaluated a set of Web sites for objec-tivity, authority and timeliness (合时). Only 35 per cent could correctly narrow an overly _____ (57) Internet search. About 130 Sacramento State students, including Juarez, participated in the experimental test, (58) to 6,300 college students across the country. The hour-long assessment test is conducted by Educational Testing Service. It is a web-based scavenger hunt (拾荒游戏)_____ (59) simulated Internet search engines and academic databases that spit out purposely misleading information. "They're very good at _____ (60) in and using the Internet, but don't always understand what they get back," said Linda Golf, head of instructional services for the CSUS library. "You see an open search box, you type in a few words and you _____ (61) the button," said Golf, who is involved in the testing. "They take at face value _____ (62) shows up at the top of the list as the best stuff." Educators say that these sloppy research skills are troubling. "We look at that as a foundational skill, in the same way we _____ (63) math and English as a foundational skill," said Lorie Roth, assistant vice-chancellor for academic programmes in the CSU system. Measuring how well students can "sort the good _____ (64) the bad" on the Internet has become a higher priority for CSU, Roth said. CSU is considering _____ (65) a mandatory assessment test on technological literacy for all freshmen, much as it has required English and math placement tests since the 1980s. Students in freshman seminars at Sacramento State were asked to take the test early in the semester and were expected to finish another round this week to measure their improvement.
