Subject The subject: math The reasons you chose the subject - difficult to understand - not relevant to my life - no time to catch up
My worst subject in school was mathematics. I didn't understand it as well as other subjects. Furthermore, it was hard for me to see the relevance of math in my life. I just never saw the point of studying so many formulas and equations that seem so abstract. I think I could have been good in math if my teacher were to have taken more time to explain it to me. Maybe I needed a different approach to math. In as much as I was weaker in math, I was stronger in art, literature and even biology so there was balance in my subjects and in my marks.

sport The sport: golf The reasons you chose the sports: - good exercise - have fun and relax - play to win I recently took up golf because I thought it might be a sport that would be fun and useful. So far, I have discovered that golf requires a lot of time and a lot of walking. This, however, adds to the fun and relaxation of a round of golf. Golf has also taught me to concentrate and to take many factors into account, such as wind and slope. Although I like to play to win, even if I don't beat my partner, I know I have played well if I have improved my own score. I think by choosing golf I have found a good way to do business in the future as well as have fun learning it now.

gift The gift: music box The reasons you chose the gift: - sentimental - thoughtful - useful My favorite gift is a music box. It has a great amount of sentimental value. It was given to me as a gift for my first dance recital with my ballet class. I was only seven years old and my family planned a dinner celebration. At the table, my father presented me with a little jewelry box. When I opened it, music played and a small plastic pink ballerina burned in a mirror. My family knew how much I loved ballet and understood my dream of becoming a ballet dancer. I didn't become a ballet dancer, but I still use my favorite gift because it reminds me of my parent's thoughtfulness.

Motto The motto: honesty is the best policy The reasons you chose the motto: - personal philosophy - easier to live with - overall moral good My motto is "honesty is the best policy" because life is easier when we tell the truth. I have felt this way ever since I read the story of Pinocchio, the little marionette whose wooden nose grew whenever he told a lie. It just seems better to deal with the truth. As a result, there are no surprises or stories that don't match up. It also helps people treat themselves with more self-respect and in turn, others will treat them in a more dignified manner. Lying to others is lying to oneself. If everyone were honest, we would all feel better in our personal lives and in dealing at work.
